GUESTS OF DEPARTMENT

Everette E. Burlingame, Bryn Mawr, was rechosen president, and Mrs. J. C. Sellers, Merion, vice-president of the Lower Merion School Board Monday night at the directors' annual reorganization.

The Board also approved final settlement for two recently purchased school properties: the James K. Clarke land at 250 Wister road, adjoining the high school athletic field, Ardmore; and the Ralph D. Colton estate also bordering Wister road. The total cost is $76,500.

An offer received from John B. Maxwell to sell his property at 508 Bryn Mawr avenue, Cynwyd, opposite the Cynwyd School grounds was refused. The plot consists of three and one-half acres.

The board acknowledged a letter from Donald Flanigan, representing heirs of the Gill estate, property the school district proposes to buy adjoining the Cynwyd School, stating that the heirs did not care to sell the tract for $20,000. He asked the opportunity of discussing the matter with the School Board.

Prior to the election, the directors, their wives and guests were guests at a dinner given by the Domestic Science Department of the High School.

Mothers, Pupils Learn of Citizenship From Faculty and Public Officials

"The First Citizen of Narberth" written by Katherine Dale, faculty member of the Narberth Public School, featured the program at the annual tea given by the Membership Committee of the Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday afternoon in the school auditorium.

Citizenship through dramatization was conveyed to the mothers and children in this interesting play of the management of the affairs of the borough of Narberth.

Three of the boys were gathered together in one of the boys' homes to do their homework for the next day. They really perferred to play baseball, when the street cleaner enters and explains why it is necessary to keep the streets free from debris.

Next Allen B. Weatherall, who is director of the playground, gave a talk. The three boys were Jimmy Burgess, Herbert Newborg and Howard Biddle; the street cleaner, John Englehart.

short talk on the playground equipment, stating that it belonged to the borough, not to individuals, and all children playing there should respect this fact. Next Miss Agnes Taylor garbed as a nurse, spoke on health. George B. Suplee, superintendent of public works, said a few words in regard to the waste of water due to leaky faucets and the proper receptacles for rubbish and garbage.

Charles V. Noel, fire chief of the Narberth Fire Company, advised the boys against making fires on vacant lots, for if the fires did no damage, they at least cost the borough money when the company was called to put out the blaze. He also advised that matches should be put in tin containers and that they should be kept out of reach of the small children in the family.

Sergeant Charles Girvin, Lower Merion officer assigned to Narberth, gave a talk on traffic and stated that

The scenery for the Players' twenty-third production will be supervised by Joseph Hongler. Scenic effects are laid in the living room of a small home in Connecticut.

Starring in this coming performance will be Lucile Clark, George McAllister, George McCullough, Helen Weatherall and Philip Pitcher. Others in the cast include Bob Estes, Anita Miller, Nancy Simpson, Natalie Fleck, Grace Werner, William Dougherty, George Werner, Mary Muller and Faith Farmer.

Lucile Watson of the professional stage had a successful run in "Post Road" in New York at the Masque Theatre. The production for Friday and Saturday will afford as many laughs and thrills for the local spectators as it did for New York's most appreciative audiences. C. L.

Lee was awarded the Harvard Club Scholarship of Philadelphia on the basis of scholarship, character, and capacity for leadership. He distinguished himself at Episcopal as president of the senior class, editor of the "Tabula" which is the Academy Year Book, winner of the Class of '77 Prize, and the Varsity "E" in football, basketball and track.

Other Main Line boys who helped to bring this honor to the academy are: Mason Fernald, Alfred Putnam, Philip Ruprecht, Converse Pierce and Harry Wood.

The scholastic basketball season starts in earnest this week. Early season games are booked for all Main Line schools and the coaches will be trying out their various combinations to see who will be the regulars when the league schedules get under way.

Lower Merion played host to Coatesville last night in the big gym on Montgomery avenue. Coatesville plays a rugged type of game and probably represents the best in basketball in Chester County. The big floor at Lower Merion will be something new for them, however, and they will not offer the Maroon an attack that will be terribly hard to combat. Next Tuesday Coach Anderson will take his boys to Pottstown to encounter a well-coached five that will give them plenty of trouble. All of the boys on the team, however, are well acquainted with the Pottstown gymnasium, having played there while members of the Junior High School team.

The Bulldogs are handicapped for the present with the loss of "Abe" Ramsey, tall centerman, who is nursing a sprained ankle. "Abe's" height is a tremendous asset to the team and his scoring ability will be sorely missed during the early part of the season. Sophomore George Paine, a youngster who has about earned the right to show himself in the lineup, is limping from a foot injury. This weakens the team's reserve power, but Coach Anderson has a large squad of capable boys and should be able to find a winning combination in spite of the handicaps.

Jefferson, Morris, Lentz, Beck and Hammond will be the starting five for the present.

The Junior High opens the season this afternoon on the home floor with the fast West Philadelphia High reserve team. Dunlap and Jones from Merion, Everhart and Maxwell from Cynwyd, Dimidio from Narberth, and Greene, Ryan and Farrell from Bryn Mawr, make up the present varsity squad. The team is light, but fast and capable, and will give all-comers plenty of action.

The Senior High will play in the Arena this year and also at the Palestra in two of their regularly scheduled games.

Harvey Buck, former Maroon football star, gets a nice break as Villanova goes to Havana for a New Year's game against Auburn.

Roger Hanger and Ray Stanley, two former Maroon stars, set the pace for Pennsylvania's victory over Lafayette at the Palestra last Saturday night. The Red and Blue played a cautious game, content to work the ball in close for shots rather than take a chance on long spot shots. Hanger had four field goals, while Stanley had one with five fouls. The boys should look better with a few more games under the wire.

Local Movies

Shirley Temple Now at Narberth; Mon. & Tues., "Nine Days a Queen"

Shirley Temple is at the Narberth Theatre this week-end in her latest, "Dimples." And as if that weren't enough, she has among her assistants Frank Morgan and that lazy cullud man, Stepin Fetchit.

"Nine Days a Queen" is the attraction Monday and Tuesday. This drama, one of the most important films of the year, portrays with historical accuracy the tragic story of Lady Jane Grey, young girl who was the innocent victim of intrigue between the Earl of Warwick and Mary Tudor. Nova Pilbeam, 16-year-old English actress, enacts Lady Jane, Desmond Tester is the boy king, Edward VI, and Sir Cedric Hardwicke is the earl. Frank Collier portrays Henry VIII. Robert Stephenson wrote and directed this film.

Joel McCrea and Joan Bennett are starred in "Two in a Crowd," coming Wednesday (Cash Award Night) and Thursday.

Next week-end George Arliss will be seen in "East Meets West."

Four Stars in "Libeled Lady" at Egyptian; and Robert Benchley Comedy

"Libeled Lady" is at the Egyptian this Friday and Saturday and next Monday and Tuesday. It is a smoothly staged, lively, entertaining romantic comedy with a cast that is the tops: Jean Harlow, William Powell, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Walter Connolly. An accompanying short subject is "How to Vote," the Robert Benchley fun classic.

Wednesday next, and (Bank Night) Thursday, including the Bank Night matinee at 2.15 Thursday, the feature will be "Walking on Air," tuneful comedy, starring Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern. Also on the program is a Popeye comedy: "Never Lick a Woman."

Ending the week will be Gary Cooper in "The General Dies at Dawn," and a Fitzpatrick Traveltalk, "Quaint Quebec."

Bank Night matinees have been inaugurated by Joseph Conway at the Egyptian Theatre, whose awards last night as this paper went to press were due to be $425 and $75. Each Thursday at 2.15 a matinee will be presented, and all who attend it will be eligible for that evening's award without having to be present at the 9 P. M. drawing.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC RATE

Reduction of over $1,000,000

Effective December 5, 1936, the Philadelphia Electric Company makes another reduction in certain electric service rates amounting to more than $1,000,000 annually. The decrease will affect thousands of our customers.

This new downward revision in rates for electric service follows closely the two reductions late in 1935: More than $1,500,000 to residential customers on September 1, 1935, and approximately $800,000 to industrial customers on December 1, 1935.

These savings are in line with our long-established policy of reducing rates to one or another group of customers whenever and wherever possible.

THE NEW RATES ARE AS FOLLOWS:

General Light and Power A reduction in Rate GLP (General Light and Power) of 1/2c in the second block, as shown in the comparison of new and old rates below. There is also benefit to the customer through an increase in the discount that can be earned under certain conditions. These changes apply to a large number of customers, including small and medium size stores and factories, professional establishments, and numerous other users, including those customers who make joint use of service for their residence and store or office. The neighborhood store, the doctor, the dentist, and the professional man are examples of this latter class.

NEW RATE

Monthly basis:

$1.00 per kw. of demand, which includes the first 10 hours' use of the demand.

4 1/2c per kw-hr. for any part of the next 90 hours' use of the demand.

2 1/2c per kw-hr. for the excess use.

OLD RATE

Monthly basis:

$1.00 per kw. of demand, which includes the first 10 hours' use of the demand.

5c per kw-hr. for any part of the next 90 hours' use of the demand.

2 1/2c per kw-hr. for the excess use.

Off-Peak Storage Water Heating in Residences Rate HS—Off-Peak Heat-Storage Service—has been reduced by the elimination of the 50c per month meter charge. This applies to all electric customers using electric water heaters on the off-peak rate—and saves each such customer $6 per year. The rate of 1c per kilowatt-hour and the minimum monthly bill of $1 remain in effect.

Broadening of Line Extension Policy There is a substantial reduction in, and simplification of, the monthly minimum charge required of a large number of present and future customers in the outlying territory supplied by this company. General terms and conditions for providing electric service in these districts are liberalized greatly and make it easier for homes in the country to enjoy an increasing use of electric comforts.

These decreases in electric service rates—in addition to the $2,300,000 rate reduction to residential and industrial customers in 1935—are a practical demonstration of our constant desire to lower rates to every class of customers. We again emphasize our slogan . . .

"Electricity Is Cheap in the Philadelphia Area!"

Earned "Social Security"

It would seem that "social security" is destined to be a political issue for a long time to come. Within the parties there is considerable internal dissension as to what is the proper program to pursue.

In the meantime, millions of American citizens are quietly and effectively achieving social security for themselves without benefit of government.

They are setting up trust funds and savings accounts. They are buying life insurance in unprecedented amounts—and more and more of the insurance sold is of the annuity type which provides old-age income as well as protection for dependents.

This is not an argument against government social security, which is believed to be a compelling need of the time. It is, however, a tribute to that old type of American independence which guards against the future through individual thrift, foresight and good hard work.

Why Not Save $450,000?

That half million dollar scheme of the Ardmore Chamber of Commerce deserves commendation for this reason: It shows the group is wide-awake to the traffic congestion in Ardmore and is making some effort to get matters remedied.

This paper has a suggestion that, if adopted, will relieve the traffic problem in Ardmore and cost Lower Merion Township only a tenth of the five hundred thousand dollars:

Acquire by purchase or condemnation land within one, or at most, two blocks of the business section, to allow for parking the cars that now park on and near Lancaster pike. Tear down such buildings as occupy this land and establish free public parking lots. Then forbid all parking, except for loading and unloading, on Lancaster avenue in the business section bounded by Lehigh avenue and the Township Building, or perhaps Church road.

Bryn Mawr Hospital Makes Annual Appeal

Bryn Mawr Hospital's annual appeal for funds was made this week in a letter mailed to Main Line residents by Samuel M. Vauclain, Rosemont, president of the hospital's Board of Trustees.

While free service in the last year totaled $74,146, donations amounted to only $30,468, the letter stated.

Pointing out that "during the past seven years it has been a most difficult problem to fulfill the duty of the hospital, it is our proud boast that no one needing hospital care has been turned away," the letter reads.

The Spectator

Sees County Opportunity for Wider Civic Service

Those who see existence in the larger cities gradually becoming a lesser thing are apt to point out that city circumstances, particularly in the Eastern United States, are constantly driving the most desirable and capable kind of citizens to the adjacent country-side, thus depriving the municipalities of a great deal of virile and intelligent leadership in civic affairs.

Abetting this viewpoint is the heavy percentage of Philadelphia notables who are resident in Montgomery County, and also it is well known that Westchester County in New York is the domicile of a great host of the metropolis' tycoons, but a fair question is . . . of what value are these men to their home-places and what evidence do we have of their interest and concern—or influence—in the life immediately about them?

There are few counties in all the lands which can vie with Montgomery in per capita wealth, advanced literacy or in the costliness and attractiveness of our acres. Advantages of extraordinary degree lurk all about us. In such a section America can be at its best and possible it is, but there is no evidence that it was planned that way nor that county management has been anything except a highly routine thing for the last two generations. Graft in these parts has always been at a minimum, but that does not alter the fact that the record reeks with intellectual corruption, and neither should we be unaware, as we seek to of which was invariably better than the "slates" which it begot.

The keynote of any political organization is the necessity of assuring its own existence and everything must stand or fall by that standard. Throughout the Nation that is so and expediency is the steady company of every boss and leader. In remote instances, conspicuously so in the case of the impregnable Hague of North Jersey, the zeal for self-preservation manifests itself in a very large and valuable service to the community en bloc, with little reference to the political claims of the small-timers in the ranks. In Montgomery, however, there has always been the customary provincial procedure and a real reluctance to board any new band-wagon promptly. As an example, Charles Johnson had picked a noted "Dry" to be our first Congressman despite the county's pronouncedly "wet" proclivities. It is only under pressure that he met the issue and changed his slowly revolving mind. Since his time there has been a sparring for position on the part of the various potentates, but the old rule still holds, that every decision must help to get specific votes as the result of the assumed influence of the individual involved.

Seldom have we seen the young idea being taught how to shoot and no talented novice has been sent up the ladder unless he first kissed the hem of the leader's garment and, incidentally, paid rather handsomely for his place in the sun. In other words, unique as our status might be as a highly cultured and history-laden county, our political basis has been of the old army-game variety, with never ascertain our political level, that our administrative decisions were made for us year after year in the back rooms of saloons over copious drafts of Adam Scheidt's beer, the quality a semblance of a discussion nor a fair public examination of the various factors at stake.

Certainly there are those in the organization who should know how to transfer its modus operandi to a different and more congruous basis, one which will endure, and in the numerous cogitations which are in order they might pay a great deal of heed to the claim that a county like this without a substantial debt has very obviously missed its most constructive opportunities.

Rosemont Nips Narberth, "B's" Lose to Artisans

Narberth has received its first setback in the Main Line League basketball endeavors, losing to Rosemont Monday night at the Brookline floor, 34-26. Narberth was leading at half time, 17-16.

The Borough "Bees" also dropped a close one to the Artisans, 21-19. Harry Hollar's boys made a great rally to come from 15-7 behind at half time to within a field goal of tying the score.

Narberth was to play Penn Wynne last evening, plays at Chester Monday. The B's play St. Katharine's C. C. at Wayne Monday, again face the Artisans Wednesday and play Wayne Thursday.

That's My Story

Around the Office

A subscriber drops in to place an ad. She wants to hire a girl to do housework and cooking; one who likes children; who will sleep in.

The same afternoon a subscriber drops in to place an ad. She wants to find a position for a fine girl who once worked for her; a girl who does housework and cooking; who is fond of children; who will sleep in.

That sort of thing happens two or three times a year. And every so often people bring notices of found articles before the owners notify us that they are lost.

And the woman who wants a roomer places her ad the week we are about to run an ad for someone who wants a room. Your paper, which runs no ad for either person when such a coincidence occurs, is content to do without the slight advertising revenue that a classified ad brings—so long as subscribers are made happy.

What burns us up more than anything else is when a subscriber threatens to cancel because her pet organization's news item was not so large as she wanted, or not so largely headlined, or had a comma misplaced, or something of that sort. I always feel, first, sorry that such a person does not have the good sense to count ten before complaining or threatening, and, second, that such a woman must lead her husband a dog's life. It is almost invariably women who resort to this petty sort of persecution. Those who do it seem to like to hurt people's feelings, and that is why I wonder pityingly about their home life.

Bits of information picked up in a casual day and evening:

Vinegar is derived from vin (wine) and aigre (sour). Dur is French for hard or bitter, which may or may not give us "durable." Explaining blotto to a Frenchman, I had difficulty avoiding words like ga-ga, potted, balmy, squiffed and the like, and inebriated seemed too technical, as did intoxicated. And then I thought of drunk, which is, after all, still in existence. Its French equivalents include "saoule," pronounced like jewel but with an initial s instead of j.

Leaving France, we come to a home industry. Did you know the Belmont Cement Burial Case Company is just about unique and is still in existence on Belmont avenue in West Manayunk?—And that there's a college of embalming in Philadelphia?—Eckels, at 17th and Diamond.

A choir with whom I rehearsed, tried out a piece for Christmas that illustrates how far afield church musicians go for novelty at Yuletide. It's "Jesu! Thou Dear Babe Divine," arranged by Dickinson from a Haytian air. And it's very pretty.

The West Window

By William Edwards Cameron

Horizons

Over the coffee-cups, during a delightful nooning with this reporter's old friend Harry Thompson, the conversation turned to the subject of horizons. There had been a discussion of men and of things and a comparison of certain people known to both T. H. T. and your conductor.

During the talk, T. H. T. remarked that there are men who could be induced to work for almost nothing—if they are provided with a gold-braided uniform and a whistle. And he cited the fact that in a circumscribed way the person encased in frogged and brass-buttoned finery is exercising power—the lust for which is the satisfying of an inborn urge common to folk in almost every calling.

In the same way in which the bedizened lackey lords it over the taxi-drivers, the martinet at his desk employs his power, real, or fancied, and his whistle becomes a push-button. At the other end of a wire, a harsh buzz startles a secretary, or some underling, into a nervous spasm of dread mixed with contempt as the peremptory summons is answered.

"That," said T. H. T., "is one way of making one's self happy—if the illusion can be entertained sincerely. In his mind, this type of man is like the Centurian of old who knew that he would be obeyed when he said 'go' and when he said 'come.' Those commanded by such a martinet say 'yes' to him—and he says 'yes' to someone else though it be to a mass of humans called his trade."

"Consider the old fisherman to be found anywhere on the New England coast. He has grown white-haired during his years of toil," said this writer's luncheon companion. "He still goes out to sea and to the deep waters to fill a dory with cod or with hake. He fishes on his own hook." That common saying means that he knows no boss and his take is his own. It indicated, in colonial days, that he was not governed by the dictates of the crown—and owned his own dory and was a free agent.

The philosopher friend went on. "He is, in a way, retired and in his spare time jack-knives a billet of pine into a ship-model. He mends his nets and he tends them, while he looks out upon a horizon where the sky and the sea meet, with a light and tender kiss. He is a happy man—noble in his old age, mellow, kindly, a spinner of yarns and a philosopher in his own right. He owns his cottage and tills its garden. He sits with his wife, of winter nights, secure in the thought that he has enough to keep them until the call comes to leave his nets for good."

"There is a happy old man—and an honest man. He's a man who has been honest with himself as well as with others. His outdoor life has kept his health. His gnarly and heavily veined hands have toiled with a will and a purpose. Like Longfellow's village blacksmith, he looks the whole world in the face for he owes not any man. Bill, don't you wish that you'd been a fisherman?" The answer was yes. Bill does.

There came to mind Chris Lang. Old Chris was a potter and lived on the outskirts of a Hudson River town. His house and his pottery were one—kiln and all. His property was on a five-acre lot composed of the kind of clay he needed. He worked in a leanto shed with one wheel in it, propelled by foot-power.

Chris made the old-fashioned crocks which have been mentioned in this Election expenditures reported last week in Montgomery County include: Republicans, $36,176.30, or $1195 more than the committee's receipts, reported by Walter A. Wilson, County Committee treasurer.

Democratic Committee: $6028.54, or $144.58 less than its receipts, reported by Frank J. Bradley, County Committee chairman.

Democratic Citizens' Committee: $34,133.13 or $139.09 less than its receipts, reported by Joseph F. McElwee, chairman.

Individual reports included: Lambert Cadwalader, Villanova, successful Republican candidate for assemblyman, receipts of $320, expenses of $337.77; Congressman J. William Ditter, Ambler, re-elected Republican candidate, receipts of $500, expenses of $601.90.

Penn Valley Garden Club

The Penn Valley Garden Club will meet on Monday morning at 10.30 A. M. at the home of Mrs. William B. Griscom, on Bryn Mawr avenue, Penn Valley.

Mrs. Richard T. Dooner will speak on "Winter Bouquets." An arrangement contest for members only will be held on that day. It is suggested that members suggest a drawing, using dried material and grasses in tones of brown in either a brown or white container. All those who desire to enter should notify Mrs. Ernest C. Drew, Narberth 3820, today.

column. And he made wide-mouthed preserve jars—the kind housewives used for their green gage plum preserves. They were urn-shaped, brown on the inside and grey on the outside. They had covers to fit; but the women used to tie over their mouths a double sheet of larded paper to keep the flavor in and the dust out.

Chris was a one-man concern. He made his own glazes, painted on his wares his own peacocks and crowing roosters. He fired his own output—and kept his cash in an old leather bag with drawstrings. Oh, but his hands were skilled. The grey clay took form in a few minutes under them. The grocers came from near and far to buy his product—and so did the hardware men.

Chris kept no books. Figures were to him anathema. He was better at old German songs and Tyrolean folklore. And he was a philosopher—a good man to know.

Your conductor told T. H. T. about him and then said, "Harry, don't you wish that you'd been a potter?" And Harry said that he did.

Art of Terrarium Explained Before Garden Club By Philip Hunter Moore

A large audience attended the December meeting of the Bala-Cynwyd Garden Club last Thursday at the Woman's Club of Bala-Cynwyd, when Philip Hunter Moore, of Abington, gave a talk and demonstration on the art of making the terrarium. He also told of the planting of dish gardens and gave a practical demonstration on how to make attractive Christmas table decorations.

Originally terraria were brought to England by various explorers. In 1853 Dr. John Moore brought a remarkable showing of sub-tropical plants to England from Australia in glass.

Many varieties of terraria have developed in recent years from this beginning. The first was perhaps the Partridge Bowl and then the Scott Bowl created by the Pennsylvania Germans, which consists of moss-like plants sealed in jars. In Germany the containers are in the shapes of animals.

Mr. Moore stated the proper soil for terraria to be one-half leaf mold and one-half sand. In these may be planted native wild plants or tropical plants which require heat.

Mr. Moore demonstrated the planting of a square terrarium: First he used moss on the side, then in the center he put the soil, including a small amount of charcoal and a few pebbles. The next step was a touch of red or some other brilliant color.

Terraria with partridge berries in them should not be placed directly in the sun, and if they can be kept cool, so much the better. The method of the terrarium is similar to that of the hothouse, the speaker said.

He spoke briefly on dish gardens, stating that these needed to be kept

Quaker Trailer Offers Three New '37 Models

High Note Reached in Luxury and Utilization of Space

With its new plant on Lincoln highway, Devon, working to full capacity to fill orders on hand, the Quaker Trailer Company is preparing to meet a firmly assured increased demand for its new 1937 line.

Ever since the new plant was opened every department, from machine shop to paint shop, has simulated the activity of a bee hive. Nor is it necessary to look far afield for the reason. A glance at the spacious showrooms at almost any hour of any day will reveal the keen interest in Quaker trailers that the public has so materially demonstrated.

"Interest in and sales of Quaker trailers have far surpassed our most optimistic hopes," reports R. M. Rakestraw, president of the company. "Every day we are given tangible evidence of the great and growing trailer consciousness on the part of persons in all walks of life. Our job is to meet various requirements with models which, in each price class, will give the utmost in trailer value. Our sales records show, I think, that we are already accomplishing this in a manner entirely satisfactory to a trailer-minded public."

The 1937 Quaker trailers achieve a new high in luxurious comfort and compact convenience. New lines, new beauty and important innovations in space utilization are features of the company's latest models. In three general price classes, they are designed to meet every trailer buyer's purse and purpose.

The Model 47, at $695, provides outstanding luxury in the four-person trailer class. Model 67, a "big brother" to No. 47, is larger, roomier and more richly furnished. It sells for $965. Model 97, priced at $1495, is an exclusive English type—actually the equivalent of a modern seven-room apartment—the last word in trailer splendor and representing outstanding value.

Poetry Contest

Girl Scouts, Brownies and any adults in Girl Scouting, help to make the delightful souvenir of our Silver Jubilee.

Region 3, which includes all the Philadelphia area, is putting on its own anniversary project, a poetry contest. The poems are to be written by any one in Girl Scouting and sent to Philadelphia Headquarters as soon as possible. They will be forwarded to Mrs. Stuart McGuire, chairman of the Region 3, Juliette Low Committee, who is in charge of the project. Poets of note will be asked to judge the contest and the poems selected by the judges as best will be compiled in a volume as the souvenir of our Silver Jubilee.

You may send in as many poems as you wish provided the total number of lines you send in does not exceed thirty-two. March 10, 1937, is the "deadline" for poems.

General Course

There will be a General Course at Headquarters on Wednesday mornings from 10.30 to 12.30 o'clock beginning December 2. Register early if you wish to take this course. The dates are December 2, 9, 16, January 13, 20, 27, February 2 and 10.

Henry MacNeill Is Versatile Bala Artist; Son Stephen Is Printer of Note

Bala has the distinction of having for residents two craftsmen, father and son, each an artist of distinction, residing at 21 Hekamore road. They are Henry T. MacNeill and his son, Stephen Moylan MacNeill. There are other artistic members of the family, but it is these two who are noted herewith. They have lived in Bala since 1921.

Mr. MacNeill, artist and decorator, is a designer of small homes, combining art with convenience, personality and classic form. For J. Howard Moeke he recently did the card-motif game room in the new home for Connie Mack, Jr., 38 West Levering Mill road, Cynwyd, and for the Johns Hopkins in Wynnewood he has just completed a game room in a marionettes motif.

An important contribution to the history of architecture in Philadelphia is his work in the restoration of the interior of the old City Hall, at Fifth and Chestnut streets, together with his drawings of every cubic inch of the State House (Independence Hall).

Not only as a painter and muralist, but also as a designer of hand-made furniture, he has done interesting work for interesting people: A screen for Fritz Reiner, the conductor, when he lived in Merion; screen of dancers for Mrs. Philip L. Leidy (Catharine Littlefield) and also furniture for her apartment at the Barclay; furniture for Mrs. William C. Hammer, and also an Italian console and bench for her Philadelphia Grand Opera Company; and he designed a distinctive music bench for Nicola d'Ascenzo, of stained glass fame.

The MacNeills' eldest son, Stephen, was given his first taste of handicraft when he was eighteen months old. By the time he was twelve he had decided on typography, printing, as his hobby and had a small press on which he did work for his friends. At thirteen he bought a big press, later adding to it the necessary motor. He now has half a ton of good type in his fonts and does work of exceptional quality for business houses who like artistic printing, literally from San Francisco to New York. He calls his press the Stephen Moylan Company, naming it after not only himself but also his ancestor of the same name, the Stephen Moylan who was aide de camp to Washington at Valley Forge. He won a cup last year as a prize in mechanical drawing and at sixteen is a sophomore at Lower Merion High School.

Sunshine Story Club

The Story Hour of the Narberth Community Library has been reorganized and is now known as the Sunshine Story Club. The first meeting was held on November 16 at 4 P. M. in the library, with 51 children of the first four grades present. Twenty-six joined the club.

At subsequent meetings these charter members chose the name "Sunshine Story Club" for the reading club, and selected Lillian Anderson, president and Mary Jane Cabrey, vice-president. The offices of librarian, secretary, page and assistant page rotate weekly among the members, librarians being appointed from fourth grade, secretaries from the third grade, etc.

The members of the Sunshine Story Club agree to try to read one book a week from the best books for their grade.

The first fifteen minutes of the meeting are allotted to club business, one half-hour to stories told by the Librarian, Miss Clara Follette, and another fifteen minutes for selecting and withdrawing club books.

The membership now numbers 37 with an average club attendance of 27, and from 5 to 10 others who enjoy the stories, but do not take any part in the club activities.

Christmas baskets will be distributed to the needy of the community by St. Margaret's Guild of St. Margaret's Catholic Church, Narberth, according to announced plans. Mrs. J. J. Cabrey is chairman of the Guild Committee.

The Christmas Club for 1937 Should Have A Thousand Members

There is every sign that money will flow in greater abundance in the year ahead of us and each of us must make sure that our share of the increased supply does not ebb as quickly as it comes.

Wages and salaries generally are expected to show rather substantial gains and, more important, it is believed that the spread between living costs and individual income will show a better surplus, assuring, in our opinion, a more profitable saving program than has been the case for many years.

In the face of these new circumstances, this community bank feels it would be lacking in the service which it owes to the neighborhood if it did not provide facilities which would permit of regular weekly or monthly savings being made on a definite basis and so, once again, we are going to have our Christmas Club and we urge a large membership for it.

Many banks have discontinued the clubs on the score that they are not profitable from a strictly banking standpoint, but that is not our idea of the matter at all, as we feel the people are entitled, by force of equity, to a convenient means of saving under the safest plan possible, and certainly no other procedure can vie with the guarantee afforded under the Federal Deposit Insurance, which protects all of our Christmas Club Accounts up to $5000.

Accounts may be opened for as little as 25 cents weekly, so that our youth may be helped in forming intelligent habits so necessary for a well-ordered life, and we suggest to housewives that they may be able to divert 10% of the weekly stipend to a saving account without in any way affecting the family routine.

At any rate, the plan is here ready for your use—any amount from 25 cents weekly—and we say again that if you do not plan now to be ahead of the game at the end of 1937 it means that you are not taking proper advantage of the appreciably improved conditions which are now abroad in the land and which are likely to continue for quite some time to come.

Be smart—save something—and save it under auspices which preclude any possibility of loss!

Advertising Executive Tells Rotarians of Agency Work

Paul L. Lewis, Strafford, vice-president of the N. W. Ayer, Inc., advertising agency, in addressing members of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club Tuesday at the Overbrook Golf Club, said that "newspapers are still the fundamental advertising medium of the United States."

The Ayer agency, he said, has 900 employees and included on its payroll are musicians, orchestra leaders, playwrights and actors. The publicity department, composed largely of former newspapermen, is a recent development, Mr. Lewis said, as is the radio advertising which has been part of the agency's work for only the past ten years.

The speaker was introduced by Albert F. W. Vick. Alexander J. Esrey, president, presided.

Wayne D. Burnside, of Cynwyd, assistant postmaster of the Bala-Cynwyd postoffice, was a guest.

Cigars were passed out by W. James Drennen, vice-president of the club, who, with Mrs. Drennen, is receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son recently.

Observance of the birthday of J. Bedford Wooley was made.

Hearing on Lot Frontage

A hearing in equity has been held in an action instituted by a Narberth man to reform a deed and mortgage on a Narberth property.

The plaintiff is John Rhoads who held a mortgage on the property sold by George B. Heald, also of Narberth, to Gabriele Ettore.

It is alleged that when the property was finally sold by the Sheriff to Rhoads who held the mortgage, it was discovered that there was not the frontage as alleged in the original sale.

Instead of being 64 feet there was but 25 feet. Rhoads, therefore, seeks to secure the land. The Court is asked to decide whether it was a mutual mistake or whether there was negligence.

Narberth Bridge Club

Monday evening, December 7, top score, Howard D. Simpson and Clifford D. Goodwin.

The Women's Division of the club will hold a special meeting this Friday afternoon at the clubrooms in Elm Hall.

Merion Civic Asks Approval of Span Project by P. S. C.

Proceedings have been instituted by the Merion Civic Association to obtain the approval of the State Public Service Commission of a plan to remedy the hazardous condition of the Rockland avenue bridge in Merion.

A complaint was filed by the civic association against the Pennsylvania Railroad, one of the interested parties in the friendly action begun to secure the consent of the P. S. C. for the improvements.

Proposed improvements include widening of the approaches at both ends of the span and construction of a five-foot sidewalk beyond the limits of the present bridge.

The petition, filed by Earle Hepburn, attorney for the civic association, sets forth that officials and representatives of the railroad have expressed its willingness to co-operate in the matter and that an agreement has been substantially reached by all parties with reference to allocation of costs.

Under a compromise plan to alleviate hazardous condition at the bridge, the Borough of Narberth and Lower Merion Township have agreed to widen the approaches.

Construction of cantilever sidewalk is the railroad's share in the work.

If all citizens, both old and young, would pay more attention to traffic laws, there would be less work for his force to do. Boys who break windows and annoy the merchants of the town are also detrimental to the welfare of the borough. He then introduced the Safety Patrol, headed by Jimmy Barnett, chairman, whose function is to assist the children across the street when going to and coming from school.

Miss Dale represented the Department of Education, stating that it cost the borough $125 a year to put a child through school. So it behoves each one to study hard and take care of the school books, she said. The School Patrol and the Golden Rule Club sang several selections. Kenneth Leins is chairman of the School Patrol.

In conclusion, the three boys, after hearing all of the above, decided that to be a good citizen, you should think of other people, and not be careless about any of the above mentioned things. They all decided that they would be First Citizens of Narberth.

A tea followed with Mrs. Welsy P. Dunnington and Mrs. John R. Stam at the tea table.

Mrs. A. S. Knapp, chairman of membership, was in charge of the tea.

Man Struck: Driver

LIEUTENANT IN WAR

Funeral services for James Thompson, 63, were held Tuesday with burial in Baltimore.

Mr. Thompson, a resident of the Argyle Apartments, Cynwyd, died of injuries sustained last Friday when he was struck by the automobile of Linn Brown, 19, Lower Merion High School student, of Ardmore. The tragedy occurred on Bala avenue, Cynwyd, opposite the entrance to the parking lot where he had just left his car, and was witnessed by a number of patrons at the Egyptian Theatre nearby.

Thompson was taken to Bryn Mawr Hospital but died of a fractured skull and other injuries soon after admission.

After striking Thompson the student's car crashed into an automobile parked in front of the Kirsch Chevrolet Co. at 214 Bala avenue. In the automobile were Mrs. Irene J. Kirsch, the wife of the owner of the agency, and her son, Allen, Jr., 12.

They were hurled to the front of the car by the impact but were uninjured.

At the Coroner's inquest Tuesday, Brown was exonerated of blame in Thompson's death. Testimony indicated that Thompson walked into the pathway of the youth's machine, that the driver swerved the car to avoid striking him, and that the machine was not traveling at an excessive rate of speed.

Thompson is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise Inhofe Thompson, a son, James Jr., eleven, a pupil at the Bala Public School. Two sisters, Mrs. Tasker Rockett, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Powell Allen Holloway, of Kenmore road, Cynwyd Estates, and a brother, Alexander Thompson, of North Wildwood, N. J., a retired manufacturer.

A resident of Cynwyd for nearly seven years, Thompson was engaged in the manufacturing of boiler stacks and metal work.

During the World War he was a lieutenant in the United States Merchant Marine. He was a graduate of the School Ship Saratoga.

Thompson was a past president of the Institution of Operating Engineers, and was a member of the Lulu Legion of Honor and the Vulcan Assembly of the Masonic Order.

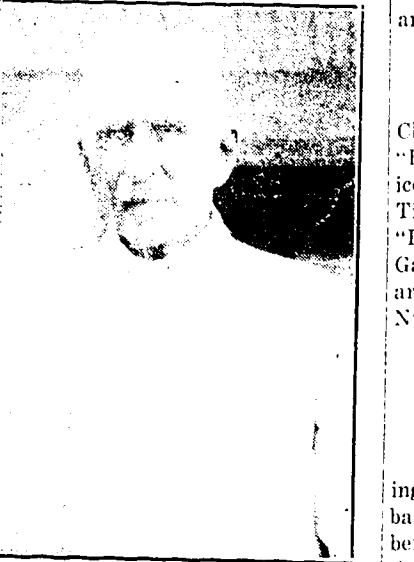

He was a member of the Philadelphia Rotary Club, the Manufacturers Club, the Shrine Club and was a former commodore of the Stone Harbor Yacht Club.

Children's Aid Society Cares for 10,000 Youngsters

Miss Irene Liggett, of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania, was the speaker at the meeting of the Merion Branch, League of Women Voters, Wednesday afternoon at the home of the Welfare chairman, Mrs. John A. Lafore, of Penn Valley Farms.

Miss Liggett outlined the work of the Children's Aid which is to place children with foster parents where they will receive as much care as if in their own homes. At present, there are about 10,000 children under the care of the bureau. These children are perhaps costing the taxpayers about one and a half million dollars for their maintenance, but this is worth it as in most cases the children are on the way to becoming good citizens of this country.

Tea was served with Mrs. John A. Lafore, Jr., and Miss Helen Lafore at the tea table.

Dear Santa:

Won't you please buy our Christmas presents at the Narberth Electric and Radio Company? Martin Case has the nicest lot of things that everyone in the family just loves! It would save mother and daddy a lot of trouble and money, too, if you'd buy their things here . . . and it's nice and convenient.

There's an American Flyer freight train outfit for $5.65—with 7 cars, electric locomotive and tender, track and transformer . . . Lots of games at 98c and toys at 49c and up—such as a swell game of Neck and Neck, 98c; real G-Man with machine gun or Tommy gun, 98c; Television Telephone, 98c; and Sis likes the Shirley Temple doll, 18 inches high, for $3.49; and the Busy Betty Washer, $1.89. Then there's a special price, $4.25, for a regular big $5.50 Erector Set.

We're sure everyone in our house would be happy if we got one of these things that Martin Case is featuring for Christmas:

Air King Radio, $13.25; Howard 11-tube all-wave world-wide reception radio with Magic Eye—console model, $69.95; a beautiful modernistic Bluebird Sparton with long and short wave—displayed in the store window—$42.50; and there's a liberal allowance on old radios traded in.

Biggest and best of all is a Sparton de luxe refrigerator, 6 cubic feet capacity, regularly $199.50, now just $175.

Mr. Case has tree lights, complete sets as low as 39c; and he does wiring for indoor and outdoor trees.

Don't bother getting an automobile heater for daddy's car, Santa; he says he can't wait 'til Christmas to get one himself; they're so reasonable—$8.95 and up, installed. And he knows all about Case's winter items for the car, like anti-freeze, alcohol, chains, windshield defrosters, etc.

Don't forget now, Santa—and thanks!

Junior and Sis Smith.
